

Paul Massaron

Paul Massaron owns a consulting firm in Southfield, Mich., that specializes in the areas of community development, governmental affairs, and labor education. In 1999 he retired from the International Union, UAW, where he was executive administrative assistant to the president of the UAW, after a career spanning 31 years devoted to labor relations, negotiating contracts, arbitration, grievance handling, labor education, and political action.

Massaron is a member of the Wayne State University Board of Governors elected statewide in 2000, serving a second term as chair of the board. Among many community activities, he is chair of the Advisory Board of the Institute for Building Sustainable Communities at University of Detroit Mercy and a member of the Advisory Board of the Institute for Local Government at the University of Michigan, Dearborn Campus.

He will be teaching as an adjunct instructor at the University of Detroit Mercy School of Architecture in the fall.
